

Yes I think XM radio should have the right to offer better service to customers for news and traffic the only reason the larger services dont want them to is there afraid that they will have to do a better job in order to compete for customers. Why is it that every time someone comes up with a better way of offering a service the larger companys complain and try to stifle or prevent them from offering a better service when they should be keeping up with the pace of technology. Instead of staying with soon to be outdated ways. The director of the FBI said computers were a fad and would go away well I dont think so who are these people tell them to grow up.
